COLUMBIA CLUB OPENING

Beautiful Remodeled Building Dedicated with a Big Meeting Last Night.

Speeches by Messrs. Fairbanks, Peelle, Gordon, Hendrickson, Foster, Chambers and Others—Ended with a Good Banquet.

The Columbia Club threw open the doors of its palatial club-house on the Circle last night for the first time since the completion of the remodeling of the building. About 150 gentlemen were present, and the interior of the club was a scene of brilliancy in the extreme. The club has been very handsomely refurnished and redecorated throughout, and is a model metropolitan club-house in every respect. An orchestra was stationed on the second floor, and a most lively music throughout the evening, while the members sauntered through from room to room at will, stopping to gaze at the rich works of art in the walls, to light a cigar or sip a glass of punch from a bowl that was not allowed to sink below the brim at any stage of the evening. The curtains, drapery and carpets are of the richest, costliest design, yet all in such perfect taste and blend with each other as to give the impression of a harmonious and intended effect. The wall-paper and furniture are also of equally elegant design, both as to quality and correctness of pattern. The only objection, so far as seen, that might be made is that the desk in the hall is a little out of place, not giving as open a passage-way as it appears should be allowed to preserve symmetry and yet afford a safe desk room. The Columbia Club is the elite social-political club of the Republic of Indianapolis. It is to this city that the Union League Club is to New York. Its membership is made up of the society element in Republican politics, which prefers to discuss the tariff and the damnable effects of a Democratic administration over their trifles and salads to hearing it argued by a vulgar and unbecoming traveling populace in a public inn. The club was originally organized in the campaign of 1888. At the close of that epoch, owing to the general spirit of good-feeling and congeniality among the members of the club, it was proposed and agreed to, almost unanimously, that a social semblance be given to the club along with its true political nature. Accordingly, it was decided that the membership should be limited to three hundred, and that the initiation should be $100. No difficulty was experienced in securing the required number, and with $30,000 in the treasury the directors, on behalf of the membership, cast about for a suitable building for a club-house. In six months from the time the idea was suggested, the new Columbia Club was enjoying a tranquil and pleasurable existence in the M. H. Snodgrass residence on the Circle, for which the sum of $24,000 was paid. Ever since, the organization has been a great success in every way, and each year has witnessed a stronger development and greater spirit of companionship among its members. Last spring it was decided to remodel the building, and return it to its original condition, and the building sprang for itself. There is an air of home about it, it is to destroy the usual unbecoming features of the average club, and it is a credit to the city, and should be a matter of pride to Democrats as well as Republicans as a monument of Indianapolis enterprise that cannot fail to be of good advertisement to the city. Among the speakers last night were C. W. Fairbanks, S. J. Peelle, J. S. Gordon, A. B. Hendrickson, C. C. Foster, R. R. Shiel, S. N. Chambers and Capt. W. D. Wiles.

Caught Them Early.
John and Thomas Venable, colored, were arrested yesterday morning at their home north of the city. They have a reputation for being ready to fight and had boasted that they could not be taken. Sheriff

Langenberg, assisted by Detectives Hamilton, Scanlan and Brumby, raided the house before they were up and had no difficulty in securing them. Their 4-o'clock-in-the-morning contraband was shown to be a missing quantity. They are under indictment for assault and battery with intent to kill James Teel, also colored, some six weeks since.

COLLEGE-AVENUE LINE

Opened Yesterday and in Operation as Far North as Tenth Street.

The first electric car over the new College-avenue line left the Union Station yesterday morning, at 10:53 o'clock, with President Frenzel, A. A. Anderson and other officers of the company, on board. Mr. Frenzel distributed button-hole bouquets among the passengers as souvenirs of the first trip. After the car had reached Massachusetts avenue its appearance was a novelty. The front doors, windows and yards filled with women and children, while storekeepers and patrons alike lost all interest in trades and business to gaze at the new mode of transportation. The car was necessarily slow, because of the uncertainty attending the first trials of track and trolley. It required fifteen and one-half minutes to run to Tenth street. The return run was made in nine minutes to Pennsylvania street. The number of cars to be run on this line is twenty, geared to make fast time. The insulation test showed a resistance of 11,500 ohms, which is said to be as near perfect as possible. It is the intention to run the Clifford and Columbia-avenue cars as trailers as far as possible, but it will require several days to complete the arrangements.

Sullivan's Belated Answer.

Mayor Sullivan's reply to the questions of the Building Trades Council reached the committee yesterday, though it reached the Sentinel the night before. It was affirmative. Mr. Gruelle explained the delay in the following card to yesterday's News:

The Journal of this morning does Judge Sullivan's answer to the questions of the Building Trades Council, which was submitted by the Building Trades Council committee, but forwarding the same to the committee, with a request that it be placed in the committee's hands. That was Friday. I endeavored to find the proper person to deliver it to last evening, but without success, as I could not learn their meeting place. It is the object of the committee, as well as others concerned, to do exact justice to all the candidates, without regard to party. The communication will be placed in the committee's hands to-day.

Home for Aged Ladies.

The ladies constituting the board of managers for the contemplated Home for Aged Women met with Mrs. J. Landers Friday afternoon, and committees were appointed to begin the preliminary work for this much needed institution. "We are," said Mrs. E. G. Cornelius, "confidently expecting our enterprise, which is born of love for the aged poor who are without the comforts of home in their declining years, will meet with a hearty response and material aid from our people. It is a cause which will surely appeal to the hearts of all, both old and young, and those who respond to our appeal for help in this work will be abundantly blessed, and the happiness they will witness of those who shall become ours to shelter and make comfortable in their old age."

Charged with Arson.

A colored boy, eleven years of age, was arrested yesterday on a charge of arson, in setting fire to a feed store on Prospect street, belonging to Charles Sobbe. His name is Bud Dickson, son of Green Dickson, who lives on the corner of Olive and Prospect streets. The boy denies the charge, and says when the fire was discovered he was in a barn a square away, trying to go to sleep. He had run away from home to keep from going to school, he said, because the teacher threatened to whip him.

ANOTHER STRIKE PROBABLE.

General Manager Bradbury Refuses the Demands of the L. E. & W. Firemen.

The demands of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen employed on the Lake Erie & Western road, for an increase of 30 cent per mile, and for mileage by the hundred, was refused yesterday by General Manager Bradbury. The answer was made to Frank P. Sargent, head of the brotherhood, who was found at the Bates House discussing the situation in company with a committee of three firemen. In response to a question Mr. Sargent said:

"The answer of Mr. Bradbury is not at all satisfactory to me. He makes no concession at all, and takes the ground that the road is now paying better wages than most other roads. He seems to put stress on his claim that the committee which came here to make the demand is acting without authority, and does not represent the wants of the firemen on his line. His answer will be submitted to the brotherhoods at the various points on the line, and the members will be called upon to vote as to whether they wish to push their demand further. If they do, and as our laws require two-thirds of the men to vote to push the demand for the increase, it will be done. When I receive the result of the vote, I will call on Mr. Bradbury and make a demand for such an increase as we deem just and equitable. Failing to receive a favorable answer, the firemen will be given the privilege of quitting and receiving the support of the brotherhood."

"How long will it take to submit the matter to a vote?" was asked.

"About three or four days. If the statement of these three men of the committee to me are correct, the brotherhood will be united and will support the committee in making an issue with the company. Mr. Bradbury's answer was all the more unsatisfactory because I took upon myself to agree to accept an increase of one-tenth, instead of two-tenths, as was demanded. That is equivalent to meeting him half way. He declines to make any concession whatever."

Mr. Sargent went to Terre Haute last night, and will await the result of the vote before returning. The committee will return to their headquarters at Lafayette, Peru and Lima to-day.

The Force of Bad Example.

The other evening a Fletcher-avenue man detected his twelve-year-old boy in such a tremendous untruth that he lost all patience. "Come with me, you young Ananias; come along with me to the stable and I'll fog you within an inch of your life."

The boy, upon this threat, yelled lustily. "It's no use to try to beg off; you've got to believe a word you say."

"But, my dear, pleaded the mother, 'there are extenuating circumstances.'"

"How can that be?" asked the father.

"He has been reading the Evening News."

Police Discipline.

The boasted discipline in the police management was illustrated by an incident that occurred on Georgetown street a few evenings since. The watchman at Taylor & Chandler's factory on West Washington street was notified that a man was killing his wife. The information was telephoned to police headquarters, where a police call in the evening, but it was 10 o'clock, over an hour later, before an officer arrived. In the meantime the brutal husband inflicted serious punishment upon his wife and effected his escape.

Child Accused of Theft.

Ollie Jackson, a colored boy about eight years old, is charged with grand larceny. He stole a bicycle from the home of Clements Vonnegut, Jr., No. 124 Alabama street. He admits his guilt.

Free Kindergarten.

The members of the Free Kindergarten and Children's Aid Society will meet at the residence of Mrs. Hugh Hanna, No. 728 North Pennsylvania street, Monday afternoon.

noon, 2 o'clock. Sewing for the schools will be there to be done or taken home. The society is in need of clothing. Those who have any to donate will confer a favor by sending it in at an early date.

Father Hooker's Mission.

Rev. Father Hooker, who was well-known in his boyhood days in this city as Fred Hooker, will arrive in New York to-night from Rome. He comes as a special envoy from the Pope to Archbishop Kenrick, of St. Louis. He can be prevailed upon to stop on his way back here to visit a Catholic pulpit one week from to-day.

City News Notes.

Mr. George Kiddle, of Cambridge, Mass., was read for his second offense in the court at Plymouth Church, next Tuesday evening, the tragedy of "Macbeth."

Kregelo & Whistler's ambulance removed Fred Newman, an L. & W. yardman, to his home on Reister street last night. Newman's leg had been broken by a car running upon him.

Marriage licenses were issued yesterday to John Kemp and Arlene Bower, Albert H. Quist and Myra H. Griffin, James Teater and Melbie Waters, Michael Maar and Frieda Schneider.

Mrs. A. S. Benjamin, a national lecturer of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, will speak on the general work of the W. C. T. U. in the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Sunday night, Oct. 11, under the auspices of the Y. W. C. T. U.

The Ladies of the Eleventh Regimental Association are requested to meet promptly on Wednesday, Oct. 14, at 2 P. M., at the residence of Mrs. J. R. Ross, 305 Central avenue, to perfect arrangements for entertaining the regiment at the reunion on the 24th.

Olaf Olsen turned up in the Journal office with another affidavit yesterday morning. This time it was to the effect that Frank Hamble, maker of the affidavit, was not half as long when he signed his card, published yesterday morning, and knew what he was signing.

Charlotte Greenlove yesterday secured an attachment against Kingan & Co. for $5,000, alleged to be due the plaintiff from the Chemical Importing and Manufacturing Company. It is alleged that Kingan & Co. have funds in their possession belonging to the plaintiff.

The statement in the Journal that Capt. Fox, drill-master, had preferred charges against patrolman Strait, was a mistake and grew out of the similarity in the sound of Strait, pronounced Strait, and State, against whom charges were preferred by a citizen. Patrolman Strait has not violated the police rules.

On application of the Pike Township Detective Horse-thief Association the County Commissioners yesterday conferred the powers of a constable upon the following persons: Frank Fox, Henton Powers, George N. Haines, Ar. G. Myers, Hiram Cline, William Folland, R. F. Adams, W. H. Guion, J. R. Sheets, John Rodibaugh, J. N. Guion, Jacob Hollingsworth, James Speer and W. L. Farmington.

In Life Insurance Management Low Expenses Paid.
First—Nothing can make up for a difference in expense.
Second—Expenses come first, dividends afterward; and the dividends must depend on what amount of income has been used in conducting the business.
Third—The Connecticut Mutual's expenses are only about half the average expenses of all life companies combined, and its dividends about double.
Fourth—Money saved and returned as dividends to help pay premiums determines the actual cost of the insurance furnished.

A Feature of Our Growth.
The last decade has witnessed in Indianapolis an improvement unsurpassed by any other city in the country—electric-street railways, fine buildings, public and private, improved streets, and all the other indications of a metropolitan city—but above all, which insures for it a glorious future, there has grown within the same spirit of enterprise that has marked the growth of all the great cities, and we can now boast of many institutions far in advance of any in other places the size of Indianapolis. Prominent among these, in fact at the head, is the great men's furnishings-goods house of Paul H. Kraus. This was established in 1871, by Eddy & West, and has now, by the business energy and progressive ideas of Mr. Kraus, grown to be the largest in the West, without exception. Mr. Kraus is the most extensive importer of English and other foreign goods of this kind in this part of the country, and carries many exclusive lines of underwear, neckwear, hosiery, gloves, etc. In the manufacture of shirts to order this establishment is unequalled. It occupies the whole building at 44 and 46 East Washington street, the first floor being the store, the basement containing the shirt factory, the basement being used as a storage room, wherein is an immense reserve stock of goods, and on the third floor is his laundry, which has the reputation of being, and is, the best in the State.
